

Chapter Twenty-two ♦ Conclusion

- 22.1 With the benefit of the Secretary of State's updated EIA scoping opinion and the feedback from the current public consultation, LRCH will refine its proposals and prepare an application for a DCO. Detailed technical studies will continue to feed into the design and assessment process, assisting LRCH in its pursuit of an acceptable development proposal.
- 22.2 The ES submitted as part of the DCO application will identify the likely significant environmental effects (both beneficial and adverse) of the Proposed Development, the mitigation measures proposed to reduce the likely significant adverse effects. It will then report on any anticipated residual significant adverse effects once the mitigation measures have been taken into account. The draft DCO will include the proposed means of enforcement and monitoring of the proposed mitigation measures.
- 22.3 LRCH welcomes comment on the potential significant environmental effects of the London Resort project and the EIA methods described in this report. Comment is invited also on any other matters that should be addressed during the EIA and any sources of environmental information that would assist the EIA process. Upon completion of the consultation, a summary of responses received will form part of the consultation report which will be submitted with the DCO.
- 22.4 Written responses to the current consultation are welcomed and should be sent by 21 September 2020 to any of the contact addresses listed at the end of chapter one of this PEIR.
